DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Lena Pritts house is situated on the edge of Dry Run Road and faces a northwesterly direction. It is a two story frame weather board structure with a three by two bay main structure with a two bay ell extending on the front southwest side. The structure has a gable roof from which protrudes a central brick chimney.

On the front of the structure, and to the northwest side of the ell, is a porch supported by turned posts with balustrades and decorative trim. On either side of the ell is an additional entrance. Another addition; a shed, single story type, appears along one back southeast facade. The weatherboard structure sits on a stone foundation partially covered with concrete. The roof is covered with sheet metal. Other outbuildings appear on the property also; including a root cellar and frame sheds.
